By Bob Slate
Staff writer

Flexing his executive decision-making muscle, Mayor Von Dee Cruse has returned garbage collection to the alleys in East Granite.

Residential trash in East Granite had been collected curbside for more than a year. Curbside collection was initiated as a pilot program in conjunction with a neighborhood revitalization program.

Since implementation of the program, a group of area residents led by precinct committeeman Gertrude Barkley has been extremely vocal in expressing its opposition to curbside pickup.

The residents say stronger enforcement of city ordinances, rather than changing the location of garbage collection, is the real solution to the problem of filthy alleys. They say alleys were created for garbage collection and that curbside pickup is unsightly and an inconvenience for many elderly citizens.

While some aldermen praised Cruse for the decision, other aldermen said the decision is "a step backward" for the city, and that Cruse "caved in to a special-interest group."

Cruse denied that his decision had anything to do with political pressure.

"This is absolutely not a political decision. (Curbside collection) was a pilot program. The pilot is complete, and we are evaluating the program now. "If it is re-implemented, it will be done citywide," Cruse said. He said that, while the program was successful in cleaning up the alleys in East Granite, placing trash in front of homes can have a deleterious effect as well.

Cruse said he would be evaluating the pilot himself, "but I'm going to get opinions from others." He declined to specify who the others would be.

The aldermen who represent the area do not agree on the issue.

While 3rd Ward Aldermen Paul Flisk and Andy Timko were proponents of the curbside program, 1st Ward Aldermen Cas-

Judge orders site cleanup

By Nicole Vaughn
Staff writer

The file on the Mitchell Auto Mart got a little thicker last week following a judge's second court order to clean up the site.

Associate Judge Daniel J. Stack denied a motion last week from property owner Paul Gain to vacate a judgment from last August ordering the cleanup and fining Gain $500.

Instead, Stack issued a new court order calling for the removal of all violations from the property, including all cars and any items of junk, trash or auto parts, within 60 days.

The site, at the corner of Lennox Avenue and Chain of Rocks Road, is a former car lot.

Gain had operated a car lot there from 1969 until 1989. Gain's special-use permit to run the business was revoked by the county last February.

If Gain does not comply, Stack's order allows the county to go onto the property, clean it up and bill Gain for the work.

Non-compliance could also result in further fines against Gain, Stack's order said.

"He has to remove each and every item or we'll find someone to do it and bill him," said Madison County State's Attorney William Haine. "We will be down there and it will be done. This guy has had too much slack to begin with."

But Gain said county officials have "wasted things around" and used "Gestapo tactics." Gain said he has taken his case to the U.S. attorney's office.

"I'm satisfied there will be an investigation," Gain said. Gain declined to explain his allegations against the county and would not discuss his previous inaction at the site.

This is not the first trouble Gain has had over the property. In 1989, Gain was jailed after refusing to pay a $1,008 sewer bill that the Madison County Special Service Area No. 1 said he owed for the site.

A bashing good time Partiers smash Japanese-built products

By Randy Vaughn
Staff writer

Apparently not since World War II has there been so much damage to Japanese-built products as there was on Super Bowl Sunday in Pontion Beach.

Customer-donated Japanese cars, televisions, video cassette recorders, stereos, radios and motorcycles were destroyed at G's Night Club prior to the Super Bowl game.

The party started at 3 p.m. and lasted through the night, attracting about 125 Japan-bashing citizens.

"It was all an idea to prove a point," owner

Dan Guenther said. "The point is that it's about time America wakes up and smells the rice. The government doesn't make us vote or buy American products. It's all up to us." The idea to mix Japanese bashing with Super Bowl fans came to Guenther early last week. "It was a great idea and we got a lot of support," he said. Candidate filing ends Radden seeks seat

SPRINGFIELD — Two of three area incumbents in the Illinois Legislature apparently will face opposition in the November election.

When candidate filing ended Tuesday, only Jim McPike, D-Alton, had no opposition. Monroe Flinn, D-Cahokia, and Wyatt Young, D-East St. Louis, both will face Republican opponents in November. None of the three will have opposition in the March primary.

Former St. Clair County Corner James Radden of Fairview Heights has filed to oppose Flinn in the restructured 113th District, which stretches from Granite City to Belleville.

In District 114, which runs along the Mississippi River from Dupu to north of Granite City, Republican Keith D. Mason of East St. Louis will oppose Young.

Radden, who served two terms as St. Clair County coroner from 1978 to 1984, said he decided to run three weeks ago after urging from House Minority Leader Lee Daniels, state and county Republican leaders, and friends and family. At that time, Radden expected to face no primary opposition, and only incumbent

Duke gets on ballot

SPRINGFIELD — Supporters of former Ku Klux Klan leader David Duke and New York Gov. Mario Cuomo filed petitions this week placing the candidates' on the state ballot as presidential hopefuls.

Tuesday was the last date to file petitions for the March 17 primary.

Cuomo supporters turned in nearly 6,000 signatures to the State Board of Elections on Tuesday. Cuomo will not be listed by name on the ballot but as "uncommitted."

Statewide, there will be 98 delegates in all 20 districts running uncommitted to the Democratic ticket but pledged for Cuomo.

"The voters of Illinois are intelligent. I think they would like to see our man go to Washington," Calvin Sukter of Chicago, a former Illinois legislator and chairman of the Illinois movement to draft Cuomo, said late Tuesday upon filing.

"We are the most committed uncommitted that there are."

Cuomo has announced he will not run for president because it would divert his attention from current problems, such as the New York state budget. Sukter said he hopes Cuomo will change his mind once he notices the outpouring of support.

Duke supporters said they worked all through the night gathering the 3,000 required sig-

Home purchase becomes nightmare

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

James Howard is having a nightmare every home buyer has, but when Howard wakes up he is left with more than a memory.

Howard recently purchased a mobile home in the 500 block of Rock Road. He thought he also purchased 1.15 acres of land. Actually, what he bought is less than two-tenths of an acre and, worse still, the garage he bought isn't even on his land.

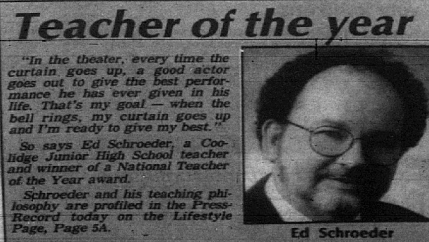

Howard was in the market for some land to build a house. He said he found the Rock Road property through Royce Realty/Century 21.

He said both the real estate agent, Bobbie Bailey, and the previous owner showed him that the land extended out into a field the previous owner said he had given a farmer permission to plant.

The Venice Township assessor's office listed only two dimensions for the lot and the office and everyone else assumed the dimensions referred to the sides of a rectangular-shaped lot of just more than an acre. The appraiser for Magna Bank, where Howard got his loan for the purchase, also used the same assumption and the loan was based on that.

"Everyone knew I was planning to scrap the trailer and build a house," Howard said. "Everyone knew my interest was in the Charges against trustee dropped

A shoplifting charge against Pontoon Beach Trustee Loren Madison has been dropped due to insufficient evidence.

Madison County Circuit Judge David Herndon entered an order Jan. 14 to dismiss the charge on a request by Assistant State's Attorney Robert Trone.

Madison, of Jones Park Drive, was charged with retail theft Dec. 16 following an incident at Central Hardware. A store detective said he saw Madison place two packages of hinges, worth $2.79, in his left jacket pocket. Madison then continued to shop, collected a number of other items and paid for them, but failed to pay for the hinges, the detective said.

Madison, 57, called the incident an oversight on his part. "I know this has happened to a lot of people," Madison said. "I just forgot that I had the item in my pocket."

Madison said he was asked and refused to sign an admission of guilt immediately following the incident. Instead, pleaded innocent and hired Granite City attorney Andy Miesky to represent him.

Gas discount brings station instant publicity

By Nicole Vaughn
Staff writer

Bill Chartrand's "Buy American" campaign has kept his telephone ringing off the hook and has brought his gasoline station nationwide attention.

"I'm just trying to do my part," said Chartrand, 47, of Edwardsville.

This is the second and final week that Chartrand has offered a 2-cent-per-gallon discount on gasoline to owners of American cars. And while the offer has Chartrand losing an estimated $30 per day, he insists the promotion has paid off.

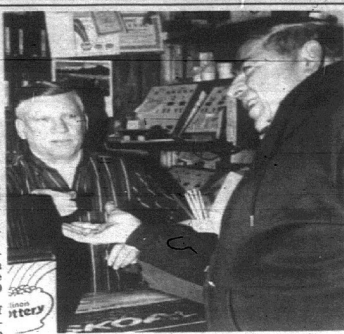

"It's got people talking," Chartrand said. "If manufacturers would offer a discount on American products, it would get factories opened up again everywhere."

Chartrand's station is located on Illinois 143 at Interstate 55 (Exit 23), east of Edwardsville.

He was angered by a recent newspaper article in which he was quoted as calling foreign-car owners "stupid," Chartrand said he was misquoted.

"I have nothing against foreign-car owners," Chartrand said. "I didn't do it to punish foreign-car owners. I did it to reward American-car owners."

But Chartrand has been pleased — and surprised — by the attention he's gained from his discount.

are meaningless unless you look at each particular bill.

"Although I am a Democrat, I don't believe either party has a 100 percent lock on what's right, and cannot do anything wrong."

"I don't believe that one party's bills are 100 percent wrong and the other party's are 100 percent right."

"In my opinion, looking at Dixon's voting record as a percentage of Democratic and Republican votes is a mistake. I don't think we should expect or even want that in any representative," Cruse said.

Dixon was criticized in 1980 when he chose to run for the Senate and gave away the Illinois secretary of state position to the Republicans. But Cruse said, "Put yourself in his shoes."

"Here was a career political person, who was ambitious, wanted to serve, and was given the opportunity to serve as a United States senator."

"That's a heck of a decision to make based just on party lines. That's asking an individual to do an awful lot."

"Whether president, senator or whatever, you still have your own feelings. It's easy to criticize someone else, but if you put yourself in the same position, it would change how you look at it."

Clinton backers have mixed views on infidelity charge

Local supporters of Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton showed mixed reactions to allegations of his marital infidelity.

St. Clair County Board Chairman John Baricevic on Tuesday ripped media coverage of the Democratic presidential candidate.

"I think the American press ought to be ashamed of itself," said Baricevic, criticizing what he called spreading of unsubstantiated rumors.

Baricevic is on the Clinton delegate slate in the 12th Congressional District, with, among others, Madison County Board Chairman Nelson Hagnauer. Hagnauer could not be reached for comment.

Another Clinton delegate candidate, veteran Wood River Township Democratic Chairman George Donohoo, was less critical of the news media but said he wished Clinton "hadn't" got into this mess, and I'd feel better about it if it hadn't happened.

Baricevic said it was too early to predict whether the allegations would harm Clinton's chances for the presidential nomination.

A Clinton acquaintance, Jennifer Flowers, has alleged in a paid interview for a supermarket tabloid that she had a 12-year affair with the Arkansas governor. Clinton has denied the allegations.

Donohoo said it appeared the publicity has hurt Clinton, "especially in the Bible Belt and in certain parts of our state."

However, Donohoo said, based on what he had heard listening to radio call-in shows, some people might support Clinton now because they believed his private life had been unfairly invaded by the news media.

"I think we are in a position where the press is going to drive everybody out of public service. Candidates should have some privacy in their (lives) and I resent what the press is doing in this case."

Baricevic said the coverage involving Clinton was different than the publicity that toppled

Democratic presidential candidate Gary Hart in 1988. "Gary Hart just flat out lied (about infidelity)," he said.

"That is not to suggest I am in favor of anything but perfect marriages, but in life perfect marriages are the exceptions that we all can strive for," Baricevic said.

At the time he agreed to be on the Clinton slate, Donohoo said the Arkansas governor appeared to be the front-runner.

"I like his stand on issues and I want to believe he's sincere. His staff is the most courteous and responsive I've ever dealt with," Donohoo said.

Drugs are stealing the future

The 15 area sixth graders in this week's "Youth Focus" in the Press-Record all agree there is a drug abuse problem. If this wasn't bad enough, tied to the sixth-grade view of the problem are words like "murder," "kidnapping," "killings," "shooting," "stealing" and "dead."

Reading these answers should send chills up and down our spine. The biggest moral dilemma these 11- and 12-year-olds should be facing is listening to a dirty joke or, for the truly incorrigible, sneaking a cigarette.

Instead they worry about, "People are shooting people for drugs, and even their mothers and fathers. They are killing teachers, and robbing stores. They are breaking in people's houses and shooting innocent kids."

Those three short sentences describe the destruction of authority (mother, father, teachers), capitalism (stores), property (people's houses), privacy (breaking in) and family (mother, father, kids). In other words, the destruction of society as we know it.

Crack cocaine is succeeding where militarism, fascism and communism failed — it is destroying American society.

We have all heard the horror stories of how far drugs have led to the fall of the once-rich, once-powerful and once-respected. Sad as those stories are, they don't represent the real horror of the drug problem.

Is there an 18-year-old out there who, if he or she weren't hooked on drugs, would have discovered the cure for cancer? What about the 15-year-old on track to find a cheap replacement for fossil fuels who will instead discover crack next year?

We will never know how much of the future we have forfeited already. The amount we may forfeit in the future is inestimable.

None of the 15 sixth graders questioned this week plan to use, or even try, drugs.

If we believe in our way of life, we owe it to these children, and to ourselves, to see that they stay on the same way — three, five, 10 and even 50 years. To do that, we must be willing to outspend, in time, effort and money, the drug dealers.

Otherwise, America as we know it will be destroyed just as surely as it would have been if we lost World War I, World War II or the Cold War.

Stamp of approval for Elvis but not Bing, Hank or Patsy

(Carol Clarkin's opinion column appears regularly in the Edwardsville Journal.)

Didn't you just get all warm and tingly inside, a week or so back, when the announcement was made that next year the U.S. Postal Service will honor Elvis Presley and Buddy Holly with stamps?

I know I did. And I was even more thrilled to learn that, in the case of The King, his fans are going to determine which Elvis will be portrayed — the young, slim, swivel-hipped Elvis or the later Elvis, jowly and corpulent.

Actually, Jim Adams of the Postal Service was more tactful than I.

He described the King in his later years as "a more contemporary Elvis."

"Contemporary" seems an odd term to use when speaking of someone who's to be honored by a commemorative stamp. But I assume the powers-that-be, Postal Service-wise, are convinced that Elvis is, indeed, resting for eternity at Graceland and not, as reported by the National Enquirer, hanging around some 7-Eleven in Kalamazoo.

What particularly piqued my interest in the announcement was the fact that five musicians will be so honored in 1993 — but the names of the other four were not announced.

That, and the recollection of an item I read early last fall in New Yorker's Talk of the Town about the establishment of a Louis Armstrong archive at Queens College in the borough of the same name.

Contents of the archive will include, among other items, thousands of photographs, hundreds of books, records, sheet music, souvenirs, letters, scrapbooks and Satchmo's own writings, his passport, his personal lip salve, and several of his trumpets.

Five gold-plated horns, to be exact.

A number of his own contemporaries had been invited to a pre-viewing of the artifacts and, it developed, a number of non-longer young jazz musicians have been trying for some time to get the Postal Service to issue a Louis Armstrong commemorative stamp, an honor long overdue.

Can it be, I thought, that Armstrong is one of the unnamed three? Easy to find out, I thought, but as usual, I was wrong, wrong, wrong.

First, I phoned the local post office, but they didn't know. The gentleman I talked to here suggested phoning the Granite City Post Office and talking to a fellow there, head of a philately club. He didn't know either.

In desperation, I turned to Our Ladies of Help of the Last Resort, Angela and Judy, a k a the little sisters of the Public Library — and true to form they came through for me.

They phoned the Regional Office of the Postmaster General and ascertained that those secret operatives of the Postal Service who make these decisions simply haven't decided yet who the remaining three musicians will be.

They also amassed several volumes of stamp information for my perusal, bless them. Thus, it might appear that Louis could be among the three — and, if he isn't, like shot for the Baseball Hall of Fame, he may get another candidate or two in subsequent years.

Checking the reference materials provided by the Ladies of Help, I found some surprises.

To date, if the material is accurate, only 15 commemorative have been issued honoring musicians, performers and composers; I had assumed that they would all be Americans, but this wasn't true.

The 15 I found listed were (in no particular order): George M. Cohan, Edward "Duke" Ellington, George Gershwin, W.C. Handy, Victor Herbert, Scott Joplin, Jerome Kern, Enrico Caruso, Francis Scott Key, Julia Ward Howe, Ignace Paderewski, Igor Stravinsky, John Philip Sousa, Franz Tassanini, and (God save the mark!) as part of the Performing Arts series, Jimmie Rodgers, "The Singing Brakeman."

No sign of the other "Kings," Oliver and Nat Cole — or, for that matter, Count Basie. No Rodgers and Hart, no Mahalia Jackson, no Woody Guthrie.

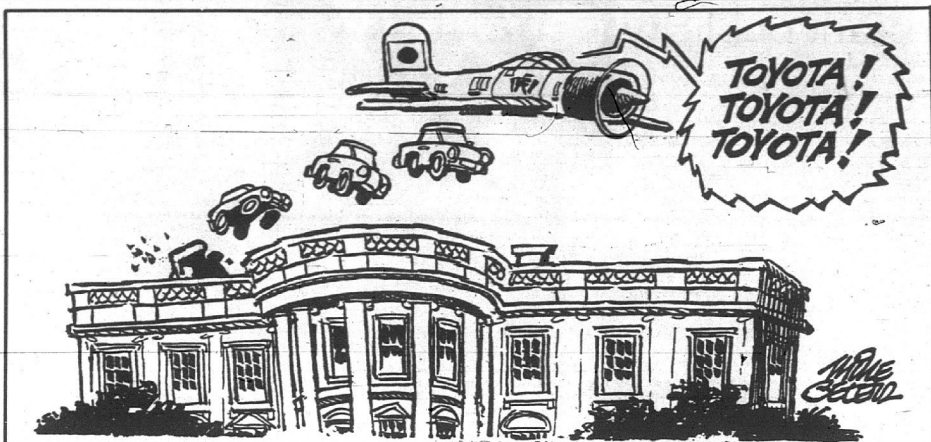

No Earl "Fatha" Hines or Teddy Wilson, no Bessie Smith or Billie Holiday.

No Irving Berlin, no Bing Crosby, no Hank Williams or Patsy Cline.

The list of no-shows could go on and on — but, by golly, old Jimmie Rodgers made it, so maybe there's hope.

An active proponent of a stamp honoring Armstrong at the Queens College archive preview, that old be-bopper, Dizzy Gillespie, told the crowd he was planning to take further action. "I'm going to write a personal letter to the President and say, 'Hey, man, what's happenin'?"

Hey, Dizzy, I'll second that one. Maybe we could make it an election issue!

Borrowing, tax increase needed

(The following was written by Steve Culen, executive director of Council 31, American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees. AFSCME represents 45,000 state employees, more than two-thirds of the state work force. It is written in the form of an open letter to Gov. Jim Edgar.)

Dear Gov. Edgar: A little more than 12 months ago, the voters elected you governor of Illinois despite the fact that unlike your opponent, you told them forthrightly that you believed it was necessary to make the temporary income tax surcharge permanent.

There is little doubt that their positive response then was due as much to your candor as to the substance of your position.

Your subsequent actions in office have demonstrated your place a high value on that public trust. You stood up for the income tax extension, but you also took a strong stand against any further tax increases or long-term borrowing, even though the alternative was major cuts in programs.

However important the qualities of steadfastness and tenacity are for a governmental leader, and they certainly are very important — they are not the only necessary characteristics.

The ability to adapt to changing circumstances in order to meet the challenges they present also is essential.

We understand that you feel it is vital to keep your pledges not to raise taxes or borrow money in order to keep faith with the voters. However, it is precisely because you have demonstrated that you are a man of your word that you do have the ability to speak directly to Illinois citizens and to tell them the truth.

And the truth is that Illinois is facing a fiscal crisis that even the most pessimistic forecasters do not predict when you pledged not to raise taxes.

The truth is that state government already is borrowing on a massive scale. It is borrowing from the hospitals, nursing homes and pharmacies that it owes tens of millions of dollars in overdue bills. Many of them may be forced to shut down permanently as a result.

It is borrowing from the state employees whose health insurance claims are going unpaid. It is borrowing from Illinois' public and private universities by failing to pay money owed for state scholarships.

The truth is that making cuts of the magnitude required to bring this budget back into balance will seriously damage our educational system and will cause untold pain for hundreds of thousands of children and other vulnerable residents who rely on the state for vital services.

And the truth is that these cuts will have a long-term negative impact on our economic climate, pushing more people into unemployment or welfare.

Although you must be mindful of the state's revenues, you are much more than simply the state's accountant whose sole job it is to check the bank balance every morning. As governor, you also have a responsibility to determine how well the state is preparing for the future.

The state's two largest daily newspapers have recognized that a tax increase is necessary. And the leaders of each house of the Legislature have indicated a willingness to support an income tax increase, as has the mayor of the city of Chicago. All that is wanting is your leadership.

Drawing on your legacy of political honesty, it is time for you to tell Illinois voters that, when you made your pledge not to raise taxes, no one imagined that we would be confronted with a fiscal crisis of this magnitude, and that to stubbornly hold to that pledge in light of today's crisis would be an abdication of your responsibility as governor.

The promise to improve the quality of education, the promise to foster early childhood development, the promise to protect public safety.

All of these — and other promises — will have to be broken if you do not act to raise new revenues. It makes no sense to cling to one promise while abandoning so many others.

Governor, you know that borrowing and taxes are the only way we can work our way out of this crisis.

Your concern for candor and integrity should now impel you to make sure that every Illinois resident knows this as well.

Favors Melucci

TO THE EDITOR: In leaving the circuit clerk's office after 32 years and having grown with this office from small to a very large and modern arm of the circuit court, my main interest in selecting a man who would qualify for the growing modernization and improvements in the court system in the years to come.

After careful study of all candidates, I have come to the conclusion that Matt Melucci is by far the best candidate for these coming years and for clerk of the circuit court of Madison County.

Matt's experience in various positions is the same needed for the operation of this office. He has the ability to expedite child support in a very courteous and prompt fashion.

Mr. Melucci is well versed in all categories needed to continue the operation of the circuit clerk's office in financial, operational, and planning procedures. He has held positions that give him a decided edge over all other candidates. I am not a close friend of Mr. Melucci; however, I have known him for several years.

I have given considerable thought to the other candidates and find none qualified for the position. The comment on associations and deputy clerks and so forth is very petty with the daily operations and supervision of the circuit clerk's office.

Several of them are connected with law enforcement and very seldom is a law enforcement official elected circuit clerk. It is much like having a policeman on a criminal jury.

Two of the candidates are also retired, one from a police force and the other from the State Police. If the voters of Madison County would prefer an old man, I would have run again.

With modern techniques such as computers, bookkeeping, scheduling, and court rules and laws, it normally takes a well-qualified person between two and three years to learn the full necessary requirements to be an excellent circuit clerk.

At the start of my announcement for retirement, I stated the man must be qualified in getting along with the public, being able to supervise the good employees in the circuit clerk's office, and also being able to cooperate with the County Board, which is absolutely necessary.

I think Matt fills all these positions. I owe it to my employees who have kept me in office for 32 years to select the best man qualified and the best man that they can work with.

Wants to review personnel files

TO THE EDITOR: The responsibilities of elected Belleville Area College board members are to formulate policy and to make sure the policy is being carried out in a professional manner.

Therefore, a board member has an unrestricted right and duty to investigate any area of activity which he or she feels may be inappropriate. That includes everything from examining the spending practices to viewing a personnel file.

For a representative democracy to survive, we must have a system of checks and balances. Because of concerns, including disturbing phone calls from constituents, I requested to see certain personnel files. I was allowed by the board in executive session to examine one file but was denied access to the others.

The board was told I wanted to make a comparison because of the treatment of a part-time instructor and to check the validity of the phone calls. It was not necessary to detail my concerns or even offer an explanation.

I strictly followed board procedure in requesting the files. However, two weeks before the meeting the chairman of the Personnel Committee unilaterally inserted another requirement outside the established procedures which was to require me to drive to Granite City and make my appeal to the committee. I refused.

It is not that I have abused my right. In four years I have only asked to review two files. No reasons were given and the requests were granted.

Several months ago I requested to read a letter of reprimand placed in an employee's file and refused to give a reason. The request was unanimously granted. Why the change of attitude?

Those who denied my rights, at best, demonstrated a gross lack of understanding. At worst, what are they trying to hide?

I have certainly lost confidence in Joe Cipri, Robert Maxwell, Kay Bennett and Mike Bowen. The president and the board appear to be slowly pulling a curtain of secrecy around the administrative activities of the college.

In the meantime, I have been locked out of my rights and duties. And the people who share my views, in part, have lost their representation. We will not stand for it.

Against burning

TO THE EDITOR: Leaf burning should be banned; it causes damage. It's real bad on one who has asthma, or asthma, which I do.

One cannot sit outside when leaves are burning, with the wind blowing leaves onto the street.

Start a compost bed; it's good for the earth.

Let's stop polluting. Granite City is polluted enough.

Excitement key to 'best teacher's' approach

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

He's the teacher everyone wishes they had in school and hopes will teach their children. Seeing him on television, hearing him on radio talk shows or just chatting with him in his dining room, it is impossible not to be impressed with Edward Marshall Schroeder of Granite City.

When Schroeder talks, the audience listens, laughs and learns — he's a teacher after all.

And the more he talks, the more impossible it becomes to write off the Walt Disney Studio's National Teacher of the Year Award, which he received for 1991, as some sort of corporate do-gooder hype. The award recognizes him as the best teacher in America.

"In the theater, every time the curtain goes up, a good actor goes out to give the best performance he has ever given in his life. That's my goal — when the bell rings, my curtain goes up and I'm ready to give my best," he says.

"That may seem like a lot to expect every day. But if you pay $30 to see a rock star like Madonna perform, you don't expect to get an 80 percent performance."

"You don't say, 'That's all right, because her dog died.' You expect her to perform at her child in school."

"As a teacher, it is even more important to give your very best. If you can't, it will be better not to go on at all."

Schroeder, an English teacher at Coolidge Junior High, teaches classes at all three levels of the Granite City District's three-track system.

When discussing his goals as a teacher, Schroeder never uses the trite "If I can reach just one child. Instead, his goal is to reach all of them. He says, "I want to be a teacher who is a role model for his students. That's a term of endearment the skills and knowledge they will need to be productive in life. And, more importantly to Schroeder, to be happy in life. "If a kid can't read and write, he is doomed for life," Schroeder says.

"Whether they are going to be a pipefitter, lawyer or school teacher, there will be a day when they will have a great idea about something at their job. Something that might earn them a bonus, or get them promoted. But, if they can't write it down, no one will ever know."

Schroeder tells his students that their peers in other countries are required to learn, in addition to their native language, English and often a third language.

"I tell them, 'English is your language. I think I would be very embarrassed if a kid from Japan came into the class and knew more about my own language than I did.'"

Writing is not easy, Schroeder says, and "I do a lot of modeling in my classes. I write on topics the kids choose and let them see me struggling. If they see the teacher having difficulty finding just the right word, they guess it is all right if they have trouble, too."

Reading, on the other hand, should be fun, according to Schroeder.

"Reading is a way for these kids to leave Granite City and go anywhere in the world they want to go in a book," he says.

Schroeder tries to select books that are interesting and exciting and he does a lot of reading out loud to his classes.

"If this sounds old-fashioned, and Schroeder has been teaching almost 30 years — it would be a mistake to assume Schroeder is some kind of 'dinosaur.' "Whoever invented Nintendo is a genius," he says. "Watch the kids play — Nintendo holds a kid's attention for hours — and you know this guy has figured out what kids want."

Like most adults, Schroeder says, he isn't good at Nintendo and therefore doesn't like it. But, he says, when a player gets to the point where he or she what does, is nine out of 10 kids decide the book was better than the movie. They are really disappointed."

"I tell them, 'Maybe 10 or 15 years the teacher had some bad students. Maybe if the teacher has good students, the teacher will become as enjoyable and your favorite teacher is right now.'"

"But if a teacher is really bad, 'It is up to the parents to do something before it gets out of hand. First, talk to the teacher. Communication can end wars, so I'm sure it can solve most problems with a teacher. But if that doesn't work, go to the principal in charge of the school. Then, as a last resort, go to the school board. But only if all other things have not worked.'" completes one game, the machine gives another game that's a little harder. If the player gets the first two, there is a third, and on and on."

"Ninety-nine percent of the time, problems can be solved by the parent and teacher."

"Whether teachers like it or not, we are competing with Nintendo," he says.

"So, what we have to do is follow Nintendo's example in the classroom. In education, we need to challenge-reward-challenge. That's the crux of keeping the kids' attention."

For his classes, Schroeder has dressed up as literary characters, brought in odors to write about, and any number of other things that might appear unorthodox.

"I don't do that every day, but my classroom door is always open," he says. "And if you come in, I'll guarantee we will be doing something fun, exciting and interesting."

Not all teachers are an Ed Schroeder, he admits, "but I don't do anything that every teacher couldn't do."

The key, he says, is for teachers to stay excited. "Take time off, take up oil painting, go to school, do something that is completely selfish."

"And if there is a day where you just can't give your best, take the day off. If you find yourself taking too many days off, seek professional help."

'Read what your children read'

As Teacher of the Year, Edward Marshall Schroeder is a frequent guest on radio talk shows and parents inevitably ask, "What can I do to help my child in school?"

"I say, 'Read what your children read.' " Schroeder said. "I think it would be great to have parents reading the same things as their children. Some of the books we read may have some questionable language. Or maybe it deals with the subject of teenage sex. Parents need to let their kids know their views on these subjects."

"Wouldn't it be great for the kids to go home and sit around dinner table discussing what they're reading in class? To have the kids find out what their parents think? And for the parents to find out what the kids think?"

"I know there is not always a dinner table, but if the parents pick up a subject together with the students, pick out a time to discuss it together, both will enjoy it."

"Parents shouldn't worry that their values and opinions may differ from those of the teacher. I don't think there is a teacher in the world who doesn't want the parents to teach kids about right and wrong, respect, moral values, and ethics," he said. "Teacher want the parents to do that and if all of our students came in having a ready learned morals and values at home, I think you would see a totally different school system."

If a student has a conflict with a teacher, Schroeder said communication is the key.

"I advise my kids to 'Kill them with kindness,'" he said. "I tell them, 'Maybe 10 or 15 years the teacher had some bad students. Maybe if the teacher has good students, the teacher will become as enjoyable and your favorite teacher is right now.'"

"But if a teacher is really bad, 'It is up to the parents to do something before it gets out of hand. First, talk to the teacher. Communication can end wars, so I'm sure it can solve most problems with a teacher. But if that doesn't work, go to the principal in charge of the school. Then, as a last resort, go to the school board. But only if all other things have not worked.'"

"Ninety-nine percent of the time, problems can be solved by the parent and teacher."

Despite star treatment, Schroeder calls city home

In connection with his appearance on the "Tonight Show" earlier this month, Teacher of the Year Edward Marshall Schroeder spent a weekend as a Hollywood star — complete with limousines, hotel suites, dressing rooms and even an autograph-signing party.

On Monday, he returned to Granite City. Talking to Schroeder, it is clear that no matter how far or high he goes, Schroeder will always return to Granite City.

"This is my home. It's where I grew up and it's where I choose to live," he said. "I tell my kids, 'Grow up, become a success and stay in Granite City.' We could use more professionals living here."

"Part of what makes a great community is a great school. To be a great teacher, you have to have a great school."

"So in my opinion this award validates my belief that Granite City is a great community and it is this great community that won the award."

The Disney awards show at which Schroeder received his honor will be repeated at 7 p.m. Friday on the Disney Channel, which is being offered for free this weekend on cable.

A video of the show is also available at the Granite City Public Library.

YOUTH FOCUS: Do you think there is a drug problem and, if so, what would you do about it?

By Pam Doepke-Hurd.

Asked of sixth grade students at Lake School, Madison Middle School and Venice Public School.

Danyell Myler, Venice
"Yes, I think that there is a drug problem in this world today. It is all caused by peer pressure. People telling other people that it is fun. Drugs can make you act silly, crazy, and it can also take control of your body in a minute."
"There are many other drugs. Smoking is a drug. It is harmful to your lungs, and your heart. All drugs are harmful to the body. You should never use drugs because you never know what it will do to you."

Crysta Mosby, Venice
"Yes, there is a drug problem today. There is a drug problem because people around us push us to do drugs. Drugs are a bad substance around the school. Drugs are killing people around us."
"I think that we should stop or try to help stop using drugs. Because pretty soon our friends maybe using drugs. They should stop people from bringing drugs to our school. We should buy things to check their pockets."

Sarah Webster, Venice
"Yes, I think there is a drug problem in the world. People are shooting people for drugs, and even their mothers and fathers. They are killing teachers, and robbing stores. They are breaking in peoples' houses and shooting innocent kids."
"I think it can be stopped by telling your kids about drugs early. So they can stay away from it. People need to get out and stop these young crimes and killings. We need to get together."

Kelly Reeves

Kelly Reeves, Granite City
"Yes, I do think there is a drug problem in America. I would write the president a letter and tell him he needs to do more than he had done. I think he needs to make a law that anyone who does drugs and gets caught could be put in jail for three months. He should also make sure everyone who wants to buy any kind of medicine has to have a prescription."

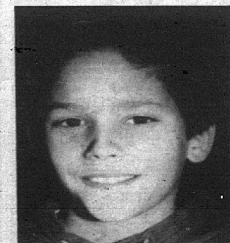

Kelly Reeves, Granite City
"Yes, I do think there is a drug problem. I believe it needs to be stopped before it gets worse. I know some friends my age that drink alcohol, smoke cigars, and do some other drugs. So, I am sure people do it. I wish we had a drug resistant world."

Brad Arnold

Kailiki Foote, Madison
"Yes, because there are drug dealers still standing on the corners. People are getting killed. If they don't get killed they will kill somebody, because they are losing their minds. They are losing their families and getting shot. People will do anything for drugs. Some people will go to a motel, and probably will shoot themselves for drugs. People will break into somebody's house for drugs. People are losing their lives over something that's not worth it."

"What would I do about it? I will try to stop people from doing drugs. I will start checking people when they go into fancy places. I will check to see if they have any guns or drugs. Sometimes people get killed in fancy places because of drugs. Hugs no drugs."

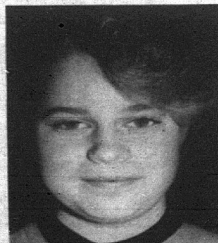

Rudy Rangel

Missy Slattery, Granite City
"Yes, there is a problem with drugs. Drugs kill people every day. This is what I will do to help. I will not take drugs and tell my friends not to take drugs too."

Rudy Rangel, Granite City
"I think some people in America have a drug problem. They take drugs once and can't resist them. I think to stop taking drugs, people of all ages who take drugs should take a special class to help them quit."

Stephanie Morlen, Granite City
"Yes, there is a drug problem and we should let the adults handle the drug problem by investigating to see who is dealing the drugs. Then the dealer's should be put in prison for a long time."

Crystal Brown

Amber Sipes, Madison
"Yes, I think there is a drug problem. There is a lot of murders and kidnapping and other things because of drug related problems."

"Eliminating the drug problem would make the world a better place to live for those people who want to live a long and happy life. A lot of people don't want to mess up by doing drugs and smoking joints."

Brad Arnold, Granite City
"Yes, I think there is a drug problem in Granite City. To try and stop the drug problem I could start a club to try to get drugs off the streets. Plus help the kids and adults who are addicted to drugs become drug free."

Missy Slattery

Pam Green, Venice
"Yes, I think there is a drug problem all over the world. Drugs are harmful, it can kill you, and you can become addicted. Drugs are sold everywhere in the world. Drugs are used by people of every age and every color."

"People start by peer pressure. People hear the messages and songs that come on TV and the radio, and they continue to use drugs."

"Some try to stop, but by the time they do it is too late. They lose their families, homes, jobs, and even their lives."

"Drugs can kill you. Stop all of the silly things, it is not necessary. They are hurting the ones they love. Why is there such a thing as drugs? The world will never know."

(See FOCUS, Page 6A)

Focus

Antonia Ware, Venice
 "Yes, I think there is a drug problem, because of all the things that are going on. People are fighting over drugs. That's some of the reasons people are homeless. They will do anything for drugs. They will even take their kids' money. People will do anything for drugs."
 "I think that if you know someone who is on drugs, you should talk to them, or try to get them in a rehab center. Drugs are bad and harmful. I think if there is someone you know, try to help them."
 "A lot of teenagers sell drugs. They know that they are killing people but they don't care. Because they're making money and the people who are buying should know too."

Kara Byrd, Madison
 "Yes, I think there is a very bad drug problem. All over the world people are using drugs. I think people use drugs because everyone tells them that they're cool, but they aren't. That's why everyone tries them."

"If I were president I would put a stop to all drugs. Really, it's their choice to do drugs and die, but I would stop them. I think there should be DARE programs all over the country. That would probably stop some teenagers from doing drugs. Someday I hope that this country will be drug free. I think that once people start paying the consequences, they will stop."

 — Chiropractic Care —
 3717 F CROSSROADS AVE
452-3090

Becky Gehling, Madison
 "I think there is a big drug problem. It's not just around here, it's all over the country. It's probably all over the world. I wish the problem would stop very soon."

"I don't know why people choose to use drugs. Maybe they think it will take their problems away. Maybe they do it because they think everyone else does. They might even use them just because it feels good. Drugs may make you feel good at the moment, but in the long run, they do not take your problems away. They make you feel sick and terrible. If you get addicted, you might even die. I wish no one did drugs. All they do is tear your friends apart, tear your family apart, and tear your life apart. They will mess up your whole life."

"If you get addicted to drugs, your body will want more and more. You might steal money just to pay for them. You might even have to sell your own possessions to get money for them. Before you know it, you will be out on the street."

Before you think about doing drugs, think about the consequences. You might decide not to try them."

Keith Mosby, Madison
 "I think there is a drug problem, because they will do anything for drugs. I don't think I will kill them right then. I would send them to jail for about 15 years. Then I will execute them. That person that is selling drugs doesn't care about the person that is using drugs. He just cares about the money."

"If you take an overdose of cocaine and crack, you will lose your job, your mind, and maybe your life. Marijuana is a bad drug too. It is ridiculous how people get hooked on those drugs."

"We need to stop killing each other for drugs. This war is more difficult than the Desert Storm, but we can win."

D'Anna Robinson, Venice
 "I think there is a drug problem. The world is going dead over drugs. People buy drugs, and they get high off them and people go really crazy. People at all ages are dying everyday over drugs. I think it should be stopped."
 "I think that American's are better without drugs. The people have died over drugs, and we all have to work together to fight it. We should protest or something. Because the next person they go after might be you or me."

"Young adults are drug dealers. Their parents don't hardly see them anymore. Because they're out in the streets trying their hardest to make some money off of the drugs they sell. Please, just say no to drugs."

Ladwell Collins, Venice
 "Yes, there is a drug problem. Because there are too many drug dealers. That's why there's a lot of people in one spot. They're buying drugs, even little people are dealing drugs. People might think they're talking to someone, but they're dealing drugs."

"They could put a counter line and see how much traffic comes through one street. Then they could have an undercover cop selling pieces of soap, the people who stop could be arrested."

Election puts strain on Bowles

SPRINGFIELD — Despite "tense strain" for her office, Madison County Clerk Evelyn Bowles says she expects to meet deadlines for the March 17 primary election.

Bowles said Monday she still had not received information from the state Board of Elections detailing precincts split into different legislative districts.

"It's particularly a problem in the Tri-City area," Bowles said, referring to the Granite City market in which precincts are split between the 12th and 13th House District.

"By using blank ballots in which the names of candidates will have to be handwritten by her staff, Bowles said she now thought her office would be able to meet the Feb. 11 deadline for the start of absentee voting. The deadline was set by the Illinois Supreme Court, which also authorized using blank ballots for the procedure.

Bowles said she had also delayed sending out new voter-registration cards because of the uncertainty over the boundaries of the new districts.

"But she said she anticipated information needed for the election would be in the hands of judges at the polling places.

"We'll try to have all the cards and labels out there so everybody is properly identified," she said.

Meanwhile, the last obstacle to a timely March 17 election is before a federal court.

A judge in Chicago Friday dismissed two of the three grounds for appeal cited by a lawyer for a group of Democratic plaintiffs challenging the redistricting plan drawn by the Republican majority.

Special defender OK'd in slaying

An East St. Louis man accused of murdering 85-year-old Elizabeth Kirts of Edwardsville has been given a special public defender.

Madison County Public Defender John Rekowski filed a motion Monday asking a judge to exclude lawyers in his office from representing Jeffrey A. Yates, 18, because of a conflict of interest.

The court then appointed attorney Rand S. Hale to represent Yates.

In the motion, Rekowski said the Yates' case conflicted with that of another client in the office. Rekowski could not be reached for a further explanation of the conflict.

A grand jury indicted Yates on two counts of first-degree murder, burglary and home invasion. According to the charges, he allegedly broke into Kirts' apartment on Devon Court Nov. 8 to commit a burglary, knowing she was there.

U.S. District Judge Charles Norgle rejected arguments that due process rights had been violated and the map engaged in politically unfair gerrymandering.

But he reserved a ruling on whether the map could be challenged under the federal Voting Rights Act on the question of racial balance.

He delayed a hearing on that issue until next Tuesday.

Dispute over Sims' book is back in appeals court

The dispute over whether a best-selling book about Paula Sims should be part of her appeal is back before the 5th District Appellate Court in Mount Vernon.

Sims' attorney wants the book, "Precious Victims," considered in the appeal of her first-degree murder conviction. Lawyer Donald Groshong said the book, written by a newspaper reporter and the prosecutor in the case, shows Sims was denied a fair trial.

But appellate prosecutors argued the book should not be part of the appeal because statements in the book "are neither testimony under oath nor representations by an attorney to a court" and that the book is "not a reliable indicator of the actual motives, intentions, beliefs or conduct of the assistant state attorney who tried the case."

The appellate court in Mount Vernon had scheduled oral arguments to consider the book and other issues in the appeal when prosecutors asked the Supreme Court to overrule the order. They wanted the question considered separately.

The high court decision directs the appellate judges to hear both sides on the book issue before deciding if it becomes part of the appeal, but the court will hear arguments related to other issues in the appeal at the same time. No date has been set.

Sims, convicted in 1990 of the first-degree murder of her 6-week-old daughter, Heather, claims the book proves prosecutorial misconduct, withholding of evidence and perjury.

"Precious Victims" was written by Charles Bosworth Jr. and Don Weber, a former Madison County assistant state's attorney who gained Sims' conviction.

The Supreme Court apparently decided not to take up the issue of the book until the appellate court rules on the appeal, said Steve Norris, deputy director of the appellate prosecutor's office.

Norris said earlier that appellate courts traditionally have refused to consider evidence unless it had been presented to a trial court.

The appellate prosecutor's reply to Sims' appeal was due Monday, but Norris said the appeals court had been asked for an extension to March 3. The defense will have five days to respond, he said.

Groshong and Madison County State's Attorney William Haine declined to comment on the Supreme Court action.

Sims, 32, is serving a life sentence for her daughter's murder. She claimed a masked gunman abducted Heather from the family's home in Alton in 1989. The child's body was discovered several days later near West Alton.

Trivia
Route 66, America's Main Street, opened in 1926, making 1992 its 66th birthday and cause for celebration by the Route 66 Association of Illinois.

Ironically, Bailey said, prior to Howard's interest she had had trouble selling the mobile home because prospective buyers weren't willing to take on the extra property. Without the liability of the extra land, Bailey said, she is sure she could sell it fairly quickly for what Howard paid for it.

"I've offered to sell it for Mr. Howard without commission," she said. "But that doesn't seem to be what he wants."

Flannigan also suggested that reselling the property might be the best solution for Howard.

"I have told both (Bailey and Howard) that I want to resolve what happened and see what can be done to get it fixed," Flannigan said. "But evidently what Mr. Howard wants is the rest of the land he thought he bought and that's one thing I don't see happening."

"Pearl Harbor, 1992" foreshadowed events to come.

The club gave away free sleds and hammers and baseball bats to allow patrons to test out not only Japanese electronics but a 1978 Mazda GLC that Guenther bought earlier in the day for $1,000 from George Weber Chevrolet. Weber has been pushing its own "Buy American" drive.

Two American products, apple pie and hot dogs, were in strong supply during the party.

"I've got a real deal on the Mazda, and it didn't have one dent or scratch on it," Guenther said. The Mazda was destroyed.

Guenther gave away a 1977 Ford LTD, which he purchased from John Novotny Chevrolet earlier in the day, at halftime of Sunday's game.

"The guy who won the car had just lost his job the Friday before," Guenther said. "He about cried from the excitement."

Guenther, a man who is careful to buy American products, has been beating the odds, calling attention to the issue for years.

"It's great to see the American movement. I hope it's not a phase," he said, adding that it probably depends on the Japanese government's next move.

The bashing event was a great idea, leaving people in a good mood, G's doorman, Dave Cooper, said.

"There were no problems. Everybody took out their aggression on the Japanese products," Cooper said.

"We tried to warn people who were going to attend the event to not drive their Japanese cars."

mer Skubish and Juanita Crawley vehemently opposed it.

Second Ward Alderman Jim Miller said he does not endorse either curbside collection or a return to the alleys. But he said, he took a lot of heat over the issue, "including from the precinct committeemen who made this a political issue."

"It always was an administrative call," Miller said. "In fact, the program was initiated by the mayor's staff."

Miller said he was never consulted about the decision. To return collection to the alleys.

"No input was sought from the aldermen," Miller said. "It was a real surprise to me."

Fisk said the decision is "a dent or scratch on it," Guenther said. The Mazda was destroyed.

Guenther gave away a 1977 Ford LTD, which he purchased from John Novotny Chevrolet earlier in the day, at halftime of Sunday's game.

"The guy who won the car had just lost his job the Friday before," Guenther said. "He about cried from the excitement."

Guenther, a man who is careful to buy American products, has been beating the odds, calling attention to the issue for years.

"It's great to see the American movement. I hope it's not a phase," he said, adding that it probably depends on the Japanese government's next move.

The bashing event was a great idea, leaving people in a good mood, G's doorman, Dave Cooper, said.

"There were no problems. Everybody took out their aggression on the Japanese products," Cooper said.

"We tried to warn people who were going to attend the event to not drive their Japanese cars."

Students hold geography bee

Matthew Keller, sixth grader at Parkview Elementary School, has won the school's Geography Bee.

At Parkview, Matt completed against Reggie Beckwith, Eric Jackson, Kristin Ribbing, Sara Schwager, Mark Moseley, Joe Herman, Theresa Lynn, Melissa Nelson, Jamie Lewis, and Jenna Wright. To advance from the school bee to the state bee, Keller had to take a written qualifying test. The first place winner from each state will advance to the National Geography Bee, scheduled for May 20 and 21, at the National Geographic Society's headquarters in Washington, D.C.

The first place winner will receive a $25,000 college scholarship and $500 in cash, plus $1000 in National Geographic Society products for the student's school.

The Parkview Geography Bee was conducted under the direction of Jane Isenberg, Learning Center and Idea Lab instructor.

Matthew 6:1 "...Take heed that ye do not your alms before men, to be seen of them: otherwise ye have no reward of your Father which is in heaven."

Taken from Jesus' Sermon on the Mount, this advice should be applied to our lives every day. Jesus did not mean that if others saw our good deeds that we shouldn't do them, only that we do them not to be seen. The total idea is not to flout our personal sacrifices before men to receive praise from them.

We are disciples of Christ. We live to do the will of our Father. We serve Him. The way in which we serve the Lord best is in good deeds to those around us.

We should, as our Lord instructs, take heed to the manner and attitude of our good works. We must be conscious always of how we appear to those around us. It is true, men looketh at the outward appearance, but God looks upon the heart.

This is a matter of utmost importance, seeing that it affects our reward in Heaven.

Let us labor for the Master diligently serving in quietness and in confidence.

was the only Red Devil to reach double figures with 24 points.

The loss also snapped Venice's (12-7) three-game winning streak.

"We still lack consistency in our game," Venice coach Clinton Harris said. "It's a matter of coming to play every night. Our problem is complacency. Some of our guys think the other teams are going to roll over because we're wearing the Venice uniform."

Ivan Johnson, who scored 23 points in Saturday's victory over St. Louis, was ineffective.

Super effort falls short

Shorthanded Warriors fall short to unbeaten McCluer

By Mike Kelly
Staff writer

On paper it was considered a mismatch.

McCluer, the No. 1-rated team in the Suburban Journal poll, was taking on a Granite City team playing its sixth game in 11 days. Rubbing salt in the wound, the Warriors were missing two starters — Drake Marshall and Mike Dochwat.

Those players were disciplined and suspended by the school for being involved in a pair of separate incidents over the weekend. Marshall (suspended for three days) is expected back on Saturday when the Warriors travel to Belleville East and Dochwat (suspended for five days) won't be back until Feb. 7 against Collinsville.

But even without those guys, the Warriors (12-7) had an impressive showing and nearly pulled off a major upset. But McCluer (14-0) rallied in the fourth quarter and defeated Granite City 60-53 on Tuesday at Memorial Gymnasium.

"I was proud of the effort," said Granite City coach Bill Ohlendorf. "The kids were finally got to us in the second half. We got tired and starting making bad decisions on the floor. When we were fresh we hung right in there with them."

McCluer, which has won 30 of its last 32 games, led 22-21 at the quarter, but the Warriors, who only used five players, came charging out of the gate and outscored the Comets 22-7 in the second period to take a 36-29 halftime lead. Sophomore guards Larry Mosby and Leroy Samuels ignited the outburst.

"I had confidence in those kids," Ohlendorf said. "This is the way we've been expecting our team to play all season. But we just got tired, and did a poor job handling their pressure late in the game."

"Our speed eventually wore them down," said McCluer coach Mike Hudock. "That's been our forte the last two years. Our kids just keep pecking away. It's a determined group that doesn't like to lose."

The Comets narrowed the gap to 45-44 by the end of the third quarter and took the lead for good on Tim Holloway's three-pointer with 3:58 to go.

"We had some problems with their size," Hudock said. "Their big kids (Brian and Jeff Smith) are both 6-9. They're physical and strong. They gave us a tough time inside."

"Our biggest kid is only 6-6 (Tony Brown), and we're more of a finesse team. Playing a physical game hurt our composure. We couldn't get into the flow of the game."

Jeff Smith finished with 19 points and six rebounds. Brian Smith had 14 points and seven boards. But they scored 14 of

Trojans snap out of their doldrums

By Tony Panozzo

Playing for the first time in five games, Ronnie Williams scored a game-high 23 points and powered the Madison High basketball team to an 89-74 victory Tuesday over Lebanon.

Williams, who had missed four games because of disciplinary action, grabbed 13 rebounds. The 6-foot-3 junior forward entered the game in the second quarter and led Madison's inside attack the rest of the way.

"The Trojans were 1-3 in Williams' absence. Yet coach Al Collins still kept him out of the starting lineup."

"He was glad to see some time," Collins said. "We might not have had any of those games if we had him."

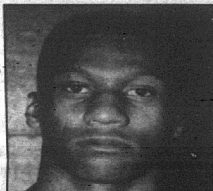

The victory was Madison's first in two weeks. It was a fast-paced game, with both teams running up and down the floor and playing pressure defense.

The Trojans took a 26-18 lead after closing the first quarter with a 6-0 run. Lebanon was able to stay close early behind guard Rico Weatherall's strong outside shooting, but Madison widened the gap in the second quarter.

Williams and guard Cernyn Macon combined for 22 points in the first half. The Trojans held Weatherall scoreless in the second quarter after he had hit two three-pointers earlier.

Madison led 50-32 at halftime and kept its lead through the rest of the way. Lebanon coach John Schieppe expected a closer game despite Williams' return to action.

"We caught them pretty fresh," Schieppe said. "They're a very good team, but I don't think they're 20 points better than us. We were better with the running game at times. I think we played pretty well in the first quarter."

The Greyhounds, who actually lost by 15 points, gave themselves a boost before halftime after a disastrous second quarter that saw Madison go on a 10-0 run for a 46-24 lead. Scott Hays, who led Lebanon with 19 points, hit a jumper in the final seconds to make it 50-32.

Lebanon forward Robert Wagner opened the second half with a wild banker, but the Greyhounds committed a turnover on their next possession and Ron Lott nailed a three-pointer to keep the momentum on Madison's side.

The Trojans ended the third quarter with a 6-0 run, the same way they ended the first quarter. Madison led 77-52 entering the final eight minutes.

The Trojans had a 37-29 advantage in rebounding. Collins was just as pleased with the team's scoring balance. Macon scored 22 points for Madison (10-7), and Lott added 17.

Allen Berry scored 18 points for the Greyhounds, who

Sykes rallies Lady Warriors over East

By Brian Henry

Correspondent

After a frigid shooting performance in the first half, the Lady Warriors were able to hang on and beat Belleville East 51-49 in Belleville on Tuesday.

Granite City made just 10 of 33 shots from the field in the opening half, but they turned things around by nailing 13 of 20 shots from the field in the second half.

Leading the turnaround was senior forward Karen Sykes. She made only three of her first nine attempts. But after a short rest in the middle of the second quarter, Sykes dominated the rest of the game.

Everything Sykes shot after her spell on the bench found a way into the basket. She made her last 11 shots on the way to a 14 of 20 shooting performance. Sykes ended up with a game-high 28 points, including 10 of her team's 14 points in the fourth quarter.

"I wasn't shooting the ball well in the first half," said Sykes, who scored 20 points for the sixth consecutive game. "Coach (Allen Lobdell) gave me a rest and he told me to keep shooting."

Only three players scored for the Lady Warriors (4-3 in the Southwestern Conference; 11-6 overall), who have won six of their last seven games. Sophomore center Jamie Cavaness, playing with a blood hemorrhage in her hip as a result of a fall against Alton, scored 15 points and pulled down 11 rebounds.

Junior forward Stephanie Kull added eight points and seven rebounds.

"We've been playing a lot of close games lately, and it's a real contest," Lobdell said. "When you can beat East at their place, you're playing pretty good."

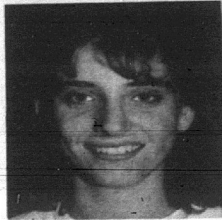

While the Lady Warriors are riding a high tide into the regionals, which begin in two weeks, the Lady Lancers (4-3; 12-9) have spluttered their way to three consecutive losses. East coach Paul James said that the problem lies in a lack of confidence.

"The girls have lost confidence in themselves and each other," he said. "We're supposed to be playing on a high right now, but we have some individuals that have no desire to go out on a winning note."

East didn't look insecure early. The Lancers bolted out to a 7-0 lead. Dee Liggins scored eight points and helped East to a 15-8 first-quarter advantage.

Granite City didn't help themselves as they missed eight of their first nine shots and were 4 of 11 in the second half.

sharp, the final score might have been 15-0.

The Warriors outshot Central, 39-9. Three-goal explosions in the first two periods put the contest out of reach. Leading 4-0, St. Peters closed out the scoring with a shorthanded goal in the final period.

Derek Zirkelbach, who scored on a penalty shot, assisted on the goal and had a three-point night. Mark Nenninger picked up a pair of assists.

"Mark really played a strong defensive game," Hinterser said. "For a guy who hasn't played in two years, he's really come on. He gave us a lot of support behind the blue line."

A trip to South Bend, Ind., aided Granite City's cause against Central.

"We played a triple A all-star team over the weekend," Hinterser said. "With our last three games of the regular season being played on Mondays, there was a lot of practice time on our hands. So I decided to play a couple of exhibition games. Facing that triple A team really helped our skating."

"Those people made us work on both ends of the ice. It gave us a boost against Central."

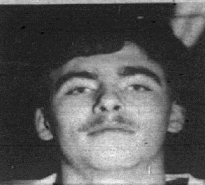

The trip also brought the team closer together.

"It was a nice trip for the kids," Hinterser said. "We brought eight cheerleaders along, the kids had a curfew and we got to play an excellent hockey team. Such experience can only bolster our chances in the playoffs."

A strong team concept has carried the Warriors all season, but they must improve their powerplay.

"There aren't too many weaknesses on this club," Hinterser said. "But we're not patient enough on the powerplay. We're forcing too many things instead of being patient. It's an area we must improve or it could eventually hurt us."

But the Warriors have one game left before they set their sights on the St. Louis Arena (on Feb. 27). They close out the regular season at home against Country Day on Monday.

Mark Nenninger had two assists of 16 from the field in the opening period. East took its biggest lead off the game, 11-2, on a Higgins basket midway through the quarter.

"We were really cold in the first half," Sykes said. "I think that's because the gym was so cold."

Lobdell echoed those sentiments. "This gym is different than any other because it's always cold," he said.

East led 19-12 with 3:19 to go in the first half. Sykes proceeded to score eight unanswered points to give the Lady Warriors a 20-19 lead at the intermission.

"I have to stay on Karen,"

Lobdell said. "She needs that 1½ to 2 minute rest in a half, and then she gets aggressive."

Granite City led 37-34 after three periods as Cavanaugh scored 11 points in the quarter. East had a chance to win with three seconds left, but Becky Opt's desperation three-pointer fell short.

"I can't say enough about Jamie; she's a big part of the offense and she hit the boards well," Lobdell said. "Dana Dresche, although she didn't score, still got seven assists and did a good job blocking out. When this team plays together, they're hard to beat."

Granite City travels to winless East St. Louis tonight.

Sparta, was ineffective. He was held to seven points by Ritter's stingy defense.

"Ivan sat out the entire first half with grade problems," Harris said. "He hurt himself by doing that. It's cost him the better part of his senior year."

"There's time to make some of that up, but he needs to get himself in playing shape. We're bringing him along gradually, and he's been putting up the numbers."

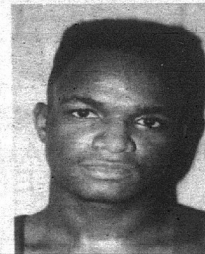

Ritter led 19-13 at the quarter and 33-29 at halftime. But a shaky start in the second half doomed Venice.

The Red Devils only scored 10 points in the third quarter and Ritter took a commanding 54-39 lead at the end of the period.

"We've had our moments this year," Harris said. "Usually our bad spells occur at the beginning of the game. But we've gone through our share of dry spells in the second half this season."

Ritter had three players in double figures, led by Montrell Irving with 21 points.

The Red Devils return home to play Beasmont (Mo.) on Tuesday. That game will also be aired by WGN 920-AM beginning approximately at 7:30 p.m.

Jonathan Love only scored seven points

Okawville on Friday and then Jacksonville next week. Both are ranked in the state, and Okawville was undefeated and ranked first in the area until losing twice last week.

"I kind of hate that," Collins said. "Now they're going to be angry. I was hoping they would still be undefeated. They'll have blood in their eyes."

Still, he said, the victory over Lebanon — and Williams' presence — gave the Trojans some confidence.

"We've been playing so badly lately," Collins said. "Maybe we're pulling together as a team. I told them we could play well on offense if we weren't so selfish."

"It's nice to win one. We wanted to get back on track."
